THE POPE'S EDIT.

Several Catholic Knights of Pythias Will Disregard it.

Associated Press London-wire Service.
NASHVILLE (Tenn.), Dec. 30.—Dr. R. L. White, supreme leader of records and seals, Knights of Pythias, in an interview concerning the order and the recent papal edict, said:

"It seems that it is a matter which each individual must settle for himself. The man who considers himself his own master in worldly affairs will remain in the order if he is devoted to its principles. I have talked with several Catholic Knights of Pythias concerning the question, and they all say they intend to remain in the order. The Supreme Lodge has decreed that each member must be loyal to the government under which he lives. You can see where that would fail to please the Pope."

The Christina Family Seriously Injured on a Railroad Crossing.

Associated Press London-wire Service.
CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—A Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific passenger coach, which was being switched into the Rock Island depot this evening, crashed into a car at a crossing. Five persons were badly injured, as follows:

MRS. C. CHRISTINA of Chicago, injured internally.

MRS. CHRISTINA of Canada, injured internally and bruised.

MISS BERTHA CHRISTINA, cut and bruised.

MISS JENNIE CHRISTINA, injured internally.

DENNIS O'CONNOR, a driver, severely injured internally.

The accident was caused by the gate-man's slowness in putting down the gate.

WHAT EXPERTS FOUND.

A Shortage in the City Collector's Office at Louisville.

Associated Press London-wire Service.
LOUISVILLE, Dec. 30.—Expert accountants have discovered a shortage of $14,000 in the City Collector's office during the term of J. Hall Davidson of this city as Collector. It is said that the work in the handwriting of Deputy W. W. Walsh, who last summer was drowned in the city reservoir. He carried about $40,000 insurance in accident and life insurance. The accountants are to report tomorrow. Davidson is now with the American Horse Exchange.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

ALBANY (N. Y.), Dec. 30.—The Delavan House, the home of politicians and the center of all big State political events for forty years past, was destroyed by fire tonight. It was 8:30 o'clock, when the political headquarters of both Fish and Maltby were filled with politicians and newspaper men, that cries of fire from different parts of the house caused consternation among the guests.

The outbreak of flames before an alarm could be given was appalling. Up the elevator shaft shot a solid column of flames, which spread quickly to each of the five floors. Fortunately the guest list was not very large, and the majority of those registered were politicians and newspaper men. The outbreak of flames before an alarm could be given was appalling. Up the elevator shaft shot a solid column of flames, which spread quickly to each of the five floors. Fortunately the guest list was not very large, and the majority of those registered were politicians and newspaper men.

The department arrived quickly, but it took some time to get the ladders up and meantime some of the people had dropped to the street. On the right side of the building there appeared a fire escape. The man had held the woman trying to persuade her to wait for help, but she broke away and ran out. She struck a balcony and rebounded into the street. The man waited for a ladder and was taken down in safety. His name is H. A. Foshee of Dayton, O. The woman was his wife and she will probably die.

Dr. Speaker Maltby's room, which was the last injured, the greatest excitement. About twenty politicians were there, including Congressman Weaver, Congressman Curtis, Senator Kilburn and Maltby. A rush was made for the stairs and when the party landed in the street the only injured one was found to be Asburyman Robbins and the rest were badly burned. Although the building is five stories high, there were no outside fire-escapes and the only means left for the people in the cut-off rooms was to use the rope fire-escapes.

Mr. Hellman of Brooklyn was in the third story. He opened his door as soon as he heard the cry of fire. A column of flame made him look to the window as the means of escape. He had but two alternatives—a fiery death or a jump. He chose the latter. When picked up he was in the room with his head on the floor and his feet on the ceiling. He was badly burned, but it either broke or else he fell out. He held for her to the pavement, badly breaking her right leg and dislocating her left ankle, also burned about the face and head. Edward Walsh, a reporter, was caught in the hall and was badly burned.

WITH AN AX.

A Horrible Butchery at Sacramento.

F. H. L. Webber and Wife Slaughtered.

Unknown Fiends Plunder Their Home After Committing the Awful Deed.

A Prospector Killed by Indians—A Shooting Affray at Stockton. Drowning of a Governor—Other News.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 30.—This community was last night the scene of one of the most heinous crimes ever committed here. An old and esteemed grocery merchant, F. H. L. Webber, and his elderly wife were brutally butchered in their comfortable home, which was plundered by the murderer or murderers. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the deed, and so many hours elapsed between the time of the commission of the deed and its discovery that the fiends have had time enough to jump an outgoing train and be two hundred miles away.

That the motive was robbery there is no doubt. Webber did a large retail business at Thirteenth and L streets, opposite Capitol Park, and was regarded as being quite well off. Singular to say, however, he had no account at any of the banks, and is supposed to have kept a considerable sum of money about his house. He and his wife lived alone in the second story of the building, in which he conducted his business. Yesterday was railroad pay-day in this city, and among Webber's customers were many railroad employees. Just how much money he had secreted about his house is not known, but the store day-book shows that his receipts yesterday were $335. This is gone. In fact, not a cent was found today in the rooms occupied by the grocer and his wife, although the safe downstairs was not molested. Everything upstairs, however, was overhauled by the murderers.

The first clue was known of the crime was about 11 o'clock today, when Webber's married son, Luther, went to the store. Seeing some blood on the floor, and finding that it had leaked through the ceiling, he hastened upstairs to ask his father what it was. He was nearly paralyzed on entering the kitchen, in the rear, to find both his parents lying dead on the floor, their clothing torn from their bodies in places, and their heads gashed and crushed by blows from an ax. The kitchen and back porch looked like a slaughter house. As nearly as can be judged from the condition of things and the position of the bodies, Webber and his wife had been sitting quite late. Webber had evidently gone upon the back porch, where he was struck down with the ax and brutally murdered. His body was found later on, dragged into the kitchen. Mrs. Webber had evidently heard the noise, and started through the hallway toward the kitchen, when she encountered the murderer, and turned back, for the back of her head was split wide open by the blade of an ax. Again and again the fiendly act repeated, and the heads and faces of the victims present a horrible appearance.

The ax with which the deed was committed was taken from a woodpile in the rear of the building, and was found today covered with the blood and brains of the murdered couple. The murderer, if there but was one, must have been dripping with the blood of his victims, as blood-marks were found even on the front fence of the open lot and adjoining store, where he or they climbed over. This fact may possibly lead to the detection of the fiends.

It is apparent that whoever did the deed knew something about Webber's business and methods, but thus far suspicion does not rest on any particular person or persons.

A Young Governess Perishes by the Overturning of a Wagon.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

UKIAH, Dec. 30.—Miss Lee Shoemaker, a young lady aged about 18 years, was drowned this morning in the Russian River, about three miles north of here. The deceased was employed as a governess in the family of Thomas Howard, and in company with her mistress and little child was on the way to church in this city.

When crossing the river the horses got beyond their control, and the wagon was overturned. Miss Shoemaker sank almost immediately. In her frantic efforts to save her child, Mrs. Howard reached shallow water. Miss Shoemaker's body was recovered half a mile below the scene of the accident.

to their old stamping grounds. It is learned that two of these Indians were with Dobs at the time he was killed, and the opinion prevails here that they killed him out of spite for his having failed to pay them what was due for their services at the fair. It is worth a man's life to venture into the country where Dobs lost his life, on account of murderous Indians who live there.

A fierce and bloody war is now in progress between these redskins and Mexican soldiers. The Yaquis have always been a source of much trouble to the Mexican government.

SAFE ON TOP.

The Overdue Vessels Columbia and J. B. Brown Nearing Port.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—The bark Columbia is safe on top of the water. She was sighted on December 23, about ten miles west of Point Arena, heading for San Francisco, and coming along at a good speed. The schooner Jennis Ward brought the news of her safety into port this afternoon.

The Columbia left Port Blakeley on December 5 for this port, with a cargo of lumber. She was thought by seafaring men to have caught the full force of the recent storm, and they felt a good deal of apprehension for her safety.

The ship J. B. Brown, another of the overdue fleet, passed Point Reyes this morning on her way to the harbor. Several times a ship has been sighted far out at sea, but has not been able to make port. The skippers sighting her were never quite sure of her identity. Now it is definitely settled, and all the vessels that were out in the storm except the bark Dominion, which left San Francisco on December 5 for Tacoma, in ballast. She was light and would be hard to manage for a gale.

The schooner Spokane arrived today from Port Gamble after a passage of eleven days. The crew of the schooner report having passed a ship's boat floating about south by southwest off Cape Flattery, nearly thirty-five miles from the land.

HIS WIFE'S FRIEND.

A Jealous Husband Probably Fatally Shot at Stockton.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

STOCKTON, Dec. 30.—Charles A. Eldridge, son of a San Joaquin county capitalist, fired three pistol shots at George Boole, a harness maker, this afternoon in a room in the Alta hotel-house. Two of the shots took effect, one entering the breast below the heart, and the other in the right leg. The physicians think that the wounds will prove fatal.

The shooting was over Boole's wife, whom he charges with infidelity, claiming that Eldridge had alienated her affections. This afternoon Boole came to the lodging-house and inquired for Eldridge. He was shown to the latter's room, where he found Eldridge writing a letter and Mrs. Boole sitting in the room with her. He struck Eldridge in the face, and the men clinched. The two struggled for some minutes. Finally Eldridge got his opponent over a trunk, and, drawing a pistol, shot him in the breast. He then fired a second and third shot.

After the shooting Eldridge surrendered. He claims that he did not mean to shoot Boole in the breast, but aimed to hit him in the arm. Mrs. Boole declares that her husband was at fault.

AN ODD FELLOWS' HOME.

Provision for the Care of the Aged and Indigent.

Associated Press London-wire Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows of the California Jurisdiction have secured a home for the care of their aged and indigent members as well as for the widows and orphans of Odd Fellows for whom proper provision has not been made.

The site of the home is just across the Feather River from Oroville, the county seat of Butte county. The building is a fine roomy structure, which was erected about three years ago in the center of the Thermoito colony. With this building the Grand Lodge, through its special committee, has purchased fifty acres of ground in the immediate vicinity of the new home.

The fearful cry at Silver Lake, Or., on Christmas eve gives further evidence that the Christmas tree entertainments in public halls are quite as deadly as the unloaded gun. Every year, at this time, we read of Santa Claus and his inflammable garb blazing. It is said that Ouida never shakes her head down to be the most vulgar form of salutation. As soon as she enters a room she makes for a seat. Once seated she will not budge until she takes leave. Any one who wishes to meet her must pay Mahomet to her mountain. In the same way, she never meets or changes her position.

But how, or when; oh, that to me
Is the deepest, saddest mystery.

But then I guess it's as it should be
That my Father withholds such knowledge from me;

At least I will try to be quite content
With what in His goodness to me is sent.

A CURIOUS ORDER.

Manners and Habits of a Strange Fraternity.

Members Who Won Fame—Tramps Who Run the Country to Suit Themselves.

The Traveling Cadger Assumes a Virtue He Does Not Possess and Enjoys the Life of Cain's Descendants.

He makes a beggar first that first relieves him; Not, unless make more beggars when they live. These charitable men that use to give.

When beggars grow thus bold, No marvel then though charity grow cold.

With the approach of winter in the East many of the gentlemen of elegant leisure have turned their footsteps westward, and Southern California has now within its borders many visitors who are taking advantage of the salubrious climate, and partaking of the Californian proverbial hospitality until "the swallows nest again."

The "Most Honorable Order of Tramps" is one, we are told, that is regularly organized in the Eastern States and has a large membership. Though not recognized officially by the community at large, a little episode which occurred during the current year was chronicled widely by the press of the country and in some manner illustrates the importance of this fraternity.

An Eastern citizen, presumably not well acquainted with the extent and ramifications of the various secret orders, made a bet of $5000 that a man could travel from Boston to San Francisco and return within a given time and, of course, without outraging his sense of propriety and the eternal fitness of things by paying any railroad fare. Needless to say, for such a long and necessarily tedious journey a delicate perception and shrewdness were needed and with mind thus found in the person of a gentleman who has "padded the hoof" for many years and is known as the "King of Tramps."

The bet was won by the stipulated time and another mark of glory had been scored on behalf of the order whose members always command attention if not respect.

History repeats itself, and the mere fact that tramps should organize themselves into an order, on lines similar to older secret orders, is not without precedent. The beggar hermits of the middle ages were members of the Augustine order who had renounced all their property and lived on the voluntary alms of the faithful.

THE ROMANCE OF HISTORY.

Samuel Moore Carew, whose name was a household word in England in the early years of the nineteenth century, belonged to an excellent family, but preferred the dignity surrounding him as King of the Beggars, to the prosaic life of respectability. Indeed, the element of romance has not been lacking in the history of the tramp fraternity. Vivian, the beggar, (Long live the Beggars) is a cry leading back to the times when in the Spanish Netherlands, in the sixteenth century, a body of nobles, under Count Louis of Namur and Henry de Broderode, banded themselves together under the name of the Order to oppose the introduction of the Inquisition by Philip II. The struggle then inaugurated ended some eighty years later in the triumph of the Inquisition.

It is a curious fact that the name of the Order is witnessed the name of the Inquisition referred to by Shakespeare. The immortal passion has played its part, too, and in some cases, the beautiful daughter of Betsham Green, who was noted throughout the countryside for her simple manners and her great beauty. She was courted by Lord Byron, a knight, a gentleman of fortune, a London merchant, and the son of an inn-keeper. She told them they must obtain the consent of her father, the poor beggar, and he heard that they all shrunk off, excepting the knight, who went to ask the beggar's leave to wed pretty Bessie. The beggar, says Percy, in the Reliques, gave her $500 for her dowry, and $100 to buy her wedding gown. At the wedding feast he explained to the guests that he was Henry de Montfort, Earl of Devon, the baron who routed Montfort, slain, and himself lost on the field for good. A herald, who discovered him, nursed him with care, married him, and the fruit of this marriage was pretty Bessie. Henry de Montfort assumed the garb and semblance of a beggar to escape the vigilance of King Henry's spies.

Those were the old days of Robin Hood, when society was out of joint, and when the following cry had some point: Beggars! the only free men of our commonwealth.

Free above all; that observe no laws, obey no governor, use no religion, but what they draw from their own ancient religion.

Dr. constitute themselves.

MODERN TRAMPS OF NOTE.

Our celebrated countryman, Mark Twain, of whom California is so proud, was known as a member of the Trampish fraternity. He wandered to foreign shores and afterwards gave his experience to the world in the "Tramps Abroad."

James Greenwood, too, the founder and editor of the "Penny Gazette," a somewhat dull organ of aristocratic, conservative element in England, made himself famous by foregrounding the habits of everyday life and denning the heterogeneous array of a tramp.

The "Amateur Casual" he wandered the highways of Merry England and partook of the "plum of plum" of the various workhouses in the casual wards of the various workhouses honored by his visits. He was not dissatisfied with the treatment he received, however, that he found the malice of the enemies who with biblical fervor said: "Oh, that mine adversary had written a book." He wrote one, and graphically described the life of a tramp, and was visited for the purpose of having them roasted, with deems of others, in a huge corner, how he was calculated to outlive with "skilly" that was calculated to choke a well-bred dog, and how, in some instances he was actually made to work on the parish farm in return for the slender entertainment he had received.

Through the efforts of Mr. Greenwood many modifications have been made in the administration of casual relief in the English workhouses, and he was the champion of the British Brotherhood of Tramps, has won for himself a place of honor among literary men.

It is within the memory of the writer that while traveling through Texas, some years ago, a belated tramp who had wandered from his beat outside the pale of civilization, was found wandering in a section hand. He was an Englishman, an M.A. of Cambridge, and had figured on the list of honor in the mathematical times of his year. He missed his vacation in life by an unfortunate habit of "brooding his little finger," and, leaving for New York at the solicitation of his friends, he obeyed the advice of Horace Greeley and came West. He had a varied career, but owing to his predilection for liquid refreshments, was destined, and indeed, at that time had become a permanent member of the Order of Tramps.

AN ANNUAL MIGRATION.

The human herd who revels in statistics and shows to a long-suffering public, too often, just how things are not, is authority for the statement that 150,000 men emerge from their winter quarters, and gather in the Middle and Eastern States for the fruit picking. Of these 80,000 are said to be perfect specimens of the genus homo. While these, for the most part, are a scum of the race, and are during the winter, they are products of Northern civilization. Tabulated returns made in the East showed the percentage in order of nativity to have been: American, 34.1; English, 23.5; French, 2.5; Scandinavian, 1.4; Swedish, 2.6; with the remainder scattering.

Alexander Smith, in his Dreamer, says: "Nature made us vagabonds; the world makes us respectable." But it seems as if the world had exhausted its stock of respectability, for life's driftwood shows signs of increase. After the fruit-picking is over in the East, a migration takes place to the plains of Minnesota and Dakota, and cotton States, and there again the hobo will condescend to earn a few dollars. After that they begin to scatter, and find good winter quarters again. True to the motto of the order to which they belong, "The world is mine oyster."

Which I with sword will open." force of either an active or passive kind, is brought to bear upon individuals who are communities to support them in idleness. The gentry who "work the blind baggage" and other similar devices to California, and consequently the order. The trip to the Pacific shore is a big one, and the railroad officials of the Western lines have a very unkind and summat way back dealing with the gentlemen of the highway who attempt to "beat" their way. Naturally enough, tramps, like other individuals, have no particular liking for desert places, and are to be disappointed in the comfortable reclining seat in a freight car, or rejected from the perilous roost on a boxcar, and left between stations where sagacious and alert are at the distinguishing features of the landscape, is a cruelty that the traveling "cadger" resents whenever opportunity offers. The amount of idleness and self-interest, pluck, displayed by these free passengers is not infrequently marvellous. One day when the overland train arrived from the summit to the valley, the tramps were not seen to emerge from underneath one of the cars. He was encumbered from head to foot in a coating of dust, and his face and hands were blackened with the biting alkali. Some of the train hands saw this nondescript and gave chase, but he was lost in the throng of people, and escaped pursuit. Curious to know how the recalcitrant "cadger" had made the trip, an investigation revealed the fact that he had placed a long, but narrow piece of board across the rails, and had hung on to the bar. On this board the following legend was inscribed in chalk: "A tramp's through ticket from New York."

History repeats itself, and the mere fact that tramps should organize themselves into an order, on lines similar to older secret orders, is not without precedent. The beggar hermits of the middle ages were members of the Augustine order who had renounced all their property and lived on the voluntary alms of the faithful.

THE OCHOA WRECK.

Arrival of the Belated Sunset Limited.

The Passengers None the Worse for the Untoward Accident.

The Trainmen Did Everything in Their Power to Protect Life and Property—Statements of Eye-Witnesses.

At 10:35 yesterday morning, the belated Southern Pacific west-bound Sunset Limited train pulled into the Arroyo Depot. Considering the terrible experience undergone by the passengers in Southeastern Arizona, they all appeared to have fully recovered from their scare, and, with the exception of one or two of the children, were none the worse for the untoward accident. Only two members of the train crew in charge at the time of the disaster at Ochoa, came through direct from New Orleans, and these will remain in charge of their departments to San Francisco. Mr. M. Shields, the through Pullman conductor, and J. F. Dougherty, in charge of the dining car, are both well known in Los Angeles, the former particularly, as he was for a considerable time in the employ of the company.

The statement of Mr. Shields regarding the accident, in all its substantial particulars, was much about the same as given by The Times yesterday. Engineer J. Hayes was in the cab at the time, and Conductor Walter Baker in charge of the train. When the train pulled out from Dragon station it was behind time, but from that point until, between 10:30 and 11:00, the most rapid of road is encountered, and no special effort was made to get into schedule time again. Just before reaching the curve at Ochoa, at 4:35 on Saturday morning, the train was running at the rate of about twenty miles an hour, and if the trainmen's estimate is not below the mark, this was a remarkably low rate of speed. Not until the curve was turned did Engineer Hayes realize danger, but the sight of the bridge timbers flaming about the engine, he was unable to do more than to bring the train to a standstill, so he did the next best thing, he turned on a full head of steam and tried to rush the train over the burning bridge. The engine passed over in safety, and the composite car, El Capitain, containing a finely-appointed library, bathrooms, barber shop and baggage compartment, was the first to clear the culvert, but was thrown on its side. The two sleeping cars, Paso Robles and San Ardo, followed, but the former was a portion of the train, and the passengers were thrown out of the cars. The head trucks ran back and forced the flooring of the car up, and permitted the smoke from the burning bridge to pour through into the car.

Meanwhile the air was filled with the jarring sound of crashing timbers, and in much quicker time than it takes to tell, the alarm was given, and the passengers were thrown out of the cars. The two sleeping cars, Paso Robles and San Ardo, followed, but the former was a portion of the train, and the passengers were thrown out of the cars. The head trucks ran back and forced the flooring of the car up, and permitted the smoke from the burning bridge to pour through into the car.

Meanwhile the air was filled with the jarring sound of crashing timbers, and in much quicker time than it takes to tell, the alarm was given, and the passengers were thrown out of the cars. The engine passed over in safety, and the composite car, El Capitain, containing a finely-appointed library, bathrooms, barber shop and baggage compartment, was the first to clear the culvert, but was thrown on its side. CONGRESS.

IT WILL RESUME OPERATIONS ON THURSDAY.

Prospects for Legislation—No Back Pay for Senators Who Fill Vacancies—Gov. Oates Thinks Carlisle's Bill Lost.

Associated Press Trans-Missouri Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Both houses of Congress will resume their sessions on Thursday next and it is expected that there will be a more determined effort to press forward the work of the session for the next two months than has characterized the proceedings during the months which have already elapsed.

The necessary work of the session is the passage of the appropriation bills, of which there are fourteen. None have passed the Senate and only five have received the sanction of the House. It is in order for the Senate to take up any reported appropriation bill at any time, and whether the Nicaragua Canal Bill, which stands on the Senate calendar as unfinished business, shall continue to hold its place of vantage will be dependent upon whether the Appropriations Committee shall desire to supplant it with the Pension or Fortifications bills, or with any other appropriation bills, after the other bills shall be reported from the committee.

The probabilities are that the Nicaragua Canal Bill will not be disposed of for the present. Senator Morgan has been devoting the holidays to the preparation of a reply to Senator Turpie's attack upon the canal bill and his friends expect him to make a vigorous and exhaustive defense of the measure. He will probably speak an entire day and possibly two or three days.

HOW GOV. OATES "SIZES IT." MONTGOMERY (Ala.), Dec. 30.—Gov. Oates, who has just returned from Washington, says, in an interview, that the Carlisle currency plan will be defeated, the Nicaragua Canal Bill will fail to pass and that Congress will do but little this session.

NO BACK PAY.

New Rule as to Senators Chosen to Fill Vacancies.

Associated Press Trans-Missouri Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The three new Senators who will be elected to fill the vacancies in the States of Wyoming, Washington and Montana will probably not be paid the back salaries, which have heretofore been paid to Senators elected or appointed to fill vacancies.

They were cut out of an express provision in the Legislative Appropriation Bill of the last session, which, it is believed, will put an end to this practice for the future. Under the new system which has prevailed heretofore each man chosen would have received the pay for the entire term of six years, notwithstanding two years of the time has already elapsed. The new law provides that the salary of the government of $30,000 in this instance, and of larger sums in the future. The new law provides that the salary of Senators shall begin on the date of their election or appointment.

Coursing Meet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—At today's coursing at Ocean View, the National Hunt Club, Kingston won from Queen, beat Bonnie Lass, Kingston won from Maggie U. Long Fellow beat Brophy, Danway beat Wee Lassie, Long Fellow won from Stamboul Queen, leaving Wee Lassie and Long Fellow winners of stakes, which were divided between them, both dogs being owned by John Pesigo. J. McElroy's bitch Teaspoon won the scratch match for a cup.

Tempered and Fell.

HUDSON (N. Y.), Dec. 30.—W. F. Rossmore, Jr., book-keeper for the National Hudson River Bank of this city, was arrested last night, on the charge of embezzling $10,000. He confessed to the taking of the amount, and said that he spent the money in stock speculation in Wall street.

An Irish Leader.

LINCOLN (Neb.), Dec. 30.—Hon. John Fitzgerald, ex-president of the Irish National League, and one of the most extensive railroad contractors in the country, died here today. He had been in poor health for a couple of years, and had practically retired from business. He was a native of Limerick, Ireland.

To Rebuild the Cliff House.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Adolph Sutro is planning to rebuild the Cliff House and will erect a four-story structure, two stories above and two below the level of the rocks. One wing will project over the rocks, so that the visitors may fish from the veranda. The building will be of wood and in size 150x300 feet.

Killed by an Alderman.

FORT WORTH (Tex.), Dec. 30.—Jim Rushing, a brother of Constable Rushing of this city, was shot and killed at 3 o'clock tonight by Martin McGrath, an Alderman from the Third Ward.

A Pleasant Occupation for Women.

"(Society Fads.)" In Demorest's Magazine for January: Here is a novel profession of the daughters of a reduced millionaire. She has thought out all for herself, and she makes money and pleasure enough from it to insure an independent life for herself. In the days of her father's glory she traveled far and wide; and now being tired of thirty years of idleness, she has decided to depend upon, she decided to become a courier for lonely or helpless women travelers. This is what she will do: If you have a notion of a change of air and scene, but are an ignorant, timid, helpless body, she will drop around with maps, guide-books and a railroad schedule, and take routes and resorts. Everything is just at her finger's ends, from Alaska to the Argentine Republic. She knows time-tables like a train-dispatcher, prices like a ticket-agent, and a lot more of the things you think you would like to go to California; in an hour she has figured out every line by which you could possibly reach the Pacific Coast, with all the advantages in scenery, comfort, time, and cost, by every route. Then she gives advice as to proper dress, the best season for going, where to go when you get there, what to see, how to see it, and then, having from all this perfectly understandable data, made your choice, she will procure for you a first-class traveling-maid. Or, if you wish to go alone, she puts into your hands, the day of departure, a little roll of typewritten manuscript and an envelope. The envelope contains tickets with minute directions as to their use; and the manuscript, the itinerary of the journey. When in doubt on any point, reference to this sets one firmly in the right path; every possible difficulty and contingency she has calculated for and fully explained. Her remuneration is gauged by the length of the journey and the amount of time and trouble she needs to expend on each patroness. In the spring she is busy sending off mothers with their children to the various resorts. The mothers explain to her that they can depend just so much on her summer's outing, and her care is to make the money do its best duty. From July to September she takes her holiday by playing courier to somebody who wishes to take a jaunt through Europe. It is needless to say she is the most delightful traveling companion in the world.

Mrs. Charles Robinson, of Lawrence, Kan., wife of the pioneer Governor, told the story of his life the other day to a photographic artist, which is to be preserved by the State Historical Society.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL.

How the Day Was Spent for Napoleon at Marengo.

(McClure's Magazine for January.) The hour of victory sounded. Faithful to Bonaparte, she came at last to hover over our heads, and to set as our guide. The divisions of Monnier and Desaix came in sight.

As soon as the first battalion of Desaix's division reached the height, it was formed into a close column. The Consul, the general-in-chief, the general, the officers of the staff, ran through the ranks, and everywhere inspired that confidence which gives birth to great successes. This operation lasted an hour, terrible to pass, for the Austrian artillery was thundering upon us, and each volley carried away whole ranks. Bullets and shells destroyed men and horses. They received death without moving from their places, and the ranks closed over the bodies of their comrades. This deadly artillery even reached the cavalry, which was drawn up behind us, as well as a large number of footmen of different corps, who, encouraged by Desaix's division, which they had seen passing, had hastened the field of battle. Everything is arranged. The battalions burn with impatience. The drummer, his eye fixed upon the baton of his major, waits the signal. The trumpet sounds, his arm raised, is ready to sound. The signal is given; the terrible quickstep is heard; the regiments all move together. French audacity, like a torrent, sweeps before it. In the twinkling of an eye the battle is crossed. The enemy is overwhelmed on all sides. Dying, living, wounded and dead are trampled under foot.

Each leader, as he reaches the opposite side of the battle and prepares to enter the plain, ranges his division in battle array. Then it was that our line presented a formidable front. As fast as the artillery arrived, it was arranged, and the death of the frightened enemy. They recoiled. Their immense cavalry charges with fury, but musketry, grape-shot, bayonets, shot them short. One of their callosities exploded; the terror is redoubled. The disorder which begins is hidden by thick clouds of smoke. The cries of the victor increase the terror; at last they are overwhelmed. They fall back, they fly.

Then the French cavalry threw itself into the plain, and by its boldness, concealed its small numbers. It marches on the enemy without fear of being broken. At the right is Desaix, at the head of his intrepid soldiers. Like a thunderbolt, he seems to precede the lightning. Every thing gives way before him. He crosses the ditches, the hedges; overwhelms, tramples, crushes everything in his way.

The rough ground, crossed with the same John Bull, with his powerful legs, regard of the fact that he knows nothing at first hand, delivers himself, as usual, of his superlative social conscience. Not only the more serious weekly, but also the daily newspapers give one the impression that they feel themselves to some extent responsible for the contemporary auditing of the accounts of the day of judgment.

On the other hand, the better class English newspapers do not indulge in rash suppositions, heavy generalizations, and certain guesses at probable future happenings, and the daily exploitation of the personal affairs of notorious nobodies. And one may be permitted to say diffidently that perhaps this is preferable. If Mr. Balfour, for example, were to go abroad for a holiday, it would be considered regular to chronicle his doings and dealings, and absolutely brutal and boresome to write particulars of the dress and behavior of his sister-in-law, if he had one. The sense of fair play of a nation of sportsmen does not permit an editor to torment even his enemy from behind a woman's petticoats.

How the Empress of Japan Dresses. ("The Empress of Japan," in Demorest's Magazine for January.) In all things the Empress sets the example for her people, and not many years ago she decided to adopt the western style of dress. The question of getting the latest auditions of the Empress was a matter of considerable moment. Her Majesty's form was too holy to be handled by a common dressmaker, so a compromise was made by taking the measure of the Countess de la Roche, the Premier, who is of just about the same height and shape as the Empress, and it was after her form that the Empress's first dress was made. The costume was not adopted until after long discussion, and it was not until nearly twenty years after her marriage that she appeared in state in the dress of 1868. She still wore the old Japanese costume at one of her garden parties, and this, as described by a lady who saw her upon the occasion, consisted of a divided skirt of the heaviest scarlet silk under a long, loose kimono of dull heliotrope brocade with conventional wistaria and the imperial crest in white. She wore no outer obi, or sash, about the waist with the big bow at the back, as is common to most Japanese dresses, and her neck was wrapped in high with surplice folds of pale-brown silk. She had long, square sleeves of this heavy brocade, and you could see many under-dresses of fine white and scarlet silk showing beneath these.

UNSPEAKABLE ATROCITIES.

Japanese Tortured at Nanking—Danger to Americans at Shanghai.

(Harper's Weekly.) The two Japanese who were taken from our Consul-General at Shanghai have been decapitated after suffering excruciating torture, and all Americans are forced into the position of apologists for their country.

"They took the young men to Nanking, where they tortured them for two—some say for three—days. They made them kneel on iron chains, with a bar of wood across their legs, and men standing on the bar. They pulled out their finger-nails. They put chains on their wrists, and poured boiling water on the chains until the metal ate its way to the prisoners' bones. They crushed the tongues of the two men. They mashed into jelly the tenderest, the most sensitive members of their bodies. When death was about to have its own way through their mutilated frames, it was hurried by the executioner's sword. That one of them died exclaiming, 'You may kill me, but my Emperor will honor me,' is no more to the point than the fact that they confessed under torture, or the further fact that the Chinese insist that they were truly spies."

The Chinese government has informed the world that these men were not tortured. Unfortunately, the Chinese are not very truthful, and in this case, all Nanking disputes the denial.

Shanghai is now the Mecca of Europeans and Americans from all over northern and central China. They have come here from Peking, where the European ministers fear immediate rioting, and, perhaps, a revolution that will overthrow the present dynasty. They have come here from Nanking, where the torture of the two Japanese is part of it being such as I cannot state in decency—has excited the people and made European life worthless. They have come here from all along the great Yangtze-Kiang Valley, where the Chinese millions are bubbling with excitement, fear of conquest, and a desire for revenge. We have no houses to be let; we have no spare rooms in the hotels. Shanghai is full. I have recently made a journey into the interior, which was safely and pleasantly accomplished, but which would not care to repeat. Your artist, C. D. Weldon, covered his boards and canvases with a rich treasure of productions of the beautiful and picturesque scenery, art and architecture and customs that surrounded us, but yesterday an artist for a great London periodical was hooded and hustled out of the walled Chinese city of Shanghai, only a mile from the room in which I am writing this. Even during our journey, we met thousands of recruits for the Chinese army coming down to the seaboard in junks, unarmored and motley in garb, but full of an enthusiasm that might easily inflame the people against us.

We Caucasians are 2000 strong here, and have, in this peculiar little Anglo-American republic, an armed force of 400 men to face the 400,000 Mongolians who are on our land and in the walled city beside it. We do not anticipate trouble or danger, but we cannot say that it may not come. Great Britain has sent two divisions of ships here and near by, and is about to send a number of powerful vessels here to protect the English in China in case of revolution or anti-foreign uprisings. Russia has a large fleet in these waters, and Germany and France have a splendid naval force at hand. Therefore we Americans, who still manage some of the greatest businesses at this port, are warranted in feeling that safety which the guns of other nations will insure us.

Rain is Coming. And you need a house. Before ordering plans for same talk with C. H. Brown and E. H. Fisher, No. 516 Stimson building. They can save you money. Eight-room Colonial houses for $1500.

with washing-powder. "Prizes," too, for any women brave enough to use it. Reckless—that's a truer word for her, when you think of all the harm that cheap, inferior washing-powders can do.

When you consider the ruined clothes, paint, etc., that you're risking, wouldn't it seem cheaper to buy these trifling "prizes," for yourself, if you want them? Pearl-line isn't peddled—doesn't give any prizes. It is a prize in itself. You can save more money with Pearl-line, by reason of its absolute safety, than with any cheap washing-powder. By the way, did you ever get a really good thing from a peddler?

Pearline is manufactured only by James Pyle, New York.

Englishmen and Their Newspapers.

(Price Collier, in December Forum.) The newspaper is a member of the family in England, and regularly comes to breakfast with the other members of the household.

The Times is a kind of oldest son among newspapers, and Punch, the jolly bachelor uncle, who makes occasional visits. Englishmen take their newspapers into the confidence, and have a native way of writing to them on all sorts of subjects. If an Englishman rows down the Thames and stops for luncheon at an inn and is overcharged, he writes to his newspaper, just as a little boy runs in to complain to his mamma of the rough treatment of his playmates, and later on this letter or "pull" will be published in the paper.

Queen Victoria received three prizes at the Smithfield cattle show and the Prince of Wales captured two. British royalty either raises fine cattle or has a strong "pull" with the judges at the prize exhibitions.

Mrs. Ormiston Chant tells a joke about herself. When before the London Music Hall Licensing Committee she overheard a gentleman ask another, pointing to two of the witnesses, "Which of those old cats is Mrs. Chant?" Mrs. Chant leaned over and said, "That particular tabby, sir, is behind you."

WOMEN PERSONALS.

Although Queen Victoria rules over an empire that embraces possessions in every part of the world, she has never traveled outside of Europe.

Mrs. P. T. Barnum complains bitterly because she is allowed but $40,000 a year for living expenses. The attention of the charity organizations is called to the distressing case of Mrs. Barnum.

The Weather.
U. S. Weather Bureau, Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30, 1894.—At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.14; at 5 p.m., 30.20. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 55 deg. and 57 deg. Maximum temperature, 61 deg.; minimum temperature, 52 deg. Character of weather, cloudy. Rainfall past twenty-four hours, .05 of an inch; rainfall for season, 5.35 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Hump Yourself.
If you wish success in business you must keep upon the hump. You must get a hump on you. And let people "See That Hump."

—(Printer's Ink.)
W. S. Malby has reached the highest pinnacle of fame as a fancy and expert bicycle rider. He has been exhibiting in Asia, Africa and Australia and performed in Europe before the crowned heads of the world. He astonished the natives of India by doing his most difficult tricks with the wheel on the back of an elephant. He will show you how to do the same at Illinois Hall, December 31, at 7:30 p.m. He represents the Keating Wheel Company of Holyoke, Mass. There will be a street procession on above date between 12 and 1 o'clock, to start from Illinois Hall, with Malby on one wheel and a band of music leading. All riders of wheels are invited to take part.

Do not waste cast-off clothing. "Economy" is the road to wealth. It also enables those already wealthy to help the destitute. Save from moth and mold your old, partially worn clothing, children's clothing, or any garments that can be made over into children's clothing. Anything of this description left at the Times business office will be useful in supplying these much in need. No matter how small the amount of clothing, it will be useful to those with no money to buy new. If inconvenient to send in the articles you have, get them ready, notify us, and they will be called for.

Bring your old or waste periodicals, magazines or old books to the Times office, or let our messengers call for them. They will be given to the poor and unfortunate.

Mrs. Bradner W. Lee will not receive on New Year's day.

The weather was cloudy all day yesterday, with frequent showers. About 5 o'clock the rain ceased, and the evening was generally clear.

The alumni of Belmont school have passed suitable resolutions on the death of Lawrence Hooker, who was for five years a student in that institution. His death is the first to occur in the school.

Tuesday, January 1, being a legal holiday, Sunday hours will be observed at the postoffice. The general delivery and carriers' windows will be open from 9:45 to 11 o'clock a.m.

At Athletic Park yesterday, the Los Angeles League played two good games of baseball. The first game was between the Francis Wilsons and the Keatings, the Wilsons winning by a score of 4 to 1. The second game was a shut-out game, the Telephones shutting out the Stars by a score of 5 to 0. Horton's pitching was the feature of the second game.

Miss Lucy Sullivan, superintendent of the Woman's Home and Zenana work in Lucknow, and Miss Clara Downey of Sitapur arrived in the city Friday, and are the guests of Mrs. G. R. Crow, 100 West Seventh street. Miss Sullivan spoke at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, East Los Angeles, and Boyle Heights, Saturday. She will speak at 11 o'clock a.m. before the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Wednesday, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

THE CITY COUNCIL

Matters to Come Up at the Session Today.

One of the most important of the matters to come before the City Council at today's session, yet one which it is likely to take little time to dispose of, is the recommendation of the Finance Committee that certain of the city officials elect be required to file additional bonds. It seems, as has been previously stated, that the aggregate amount for which some of the sureties have qualified on city bonds are greater than the assessed value of unencumbered property assessed against them on the city and county assessment rolls.

Discussion may be provoked by the recommendation of the Finance Committee as to the locations of the chemical engines recently purchased for the fire department. Should the matter not be referred to the incoming Council, as a member of important matters have been, likely there may be a vote of more or less volume from the Councilmen, who think their wards are not getting a fair distribution of the fire-quenching apparatus.

No move has yet been made for the printing of the municipal reports, as was done last year. There has been some talk in favor of a banion as for the several departments printed separately. A recommendation of the Finance Committee last week, that $10,000 be allowed the property-owners in the Hill-street sewer district as a rebate for being compelled to pay for sewers of greater size than are needed for their district alone, failed to be adopted by the Council. The matter was turned over to the Sewer Committee, which will have an opportunity to report today recommending it be referred to the incoming Council or otherwise acted on.

The contract with H. C. Register for piping the zanja on Second street and Lakeshore avenue was last week returned by the Mayor without his approval. The Mayor gave as his reasons for not approving the document the statements set forth in a report of the City Engineer recommending that cast iron, instead of sheet iron pipe be used. Action on the contract was deferred till this morning.

The City Attorney has been requested to present an opinion as to whether the contract between the City Water Company and the city does not require the former to keep fire hydrants in repair without exacting to the last cent.

Recommendations for numerous crosswalks will be made by the Board of Public Works. Bids have been advertised for the construction of 1475 feet of twenty-two-inch cement pipe for the zanja running along Main street, from Jefferson to the south-city city boundary; also for the piping of zanja 6-1 with a thirty-inch cement pipe, between Messenger and Botello streets, and the construction of 150 feet of redwood flume for the same zanja near Palmetto street.

JANUARY WEATHER.

Data Compiled from the Records for Sixteen Years.
The chief of the Weather Bureau furnishes for publication the following data, compiled from the record of observations for the month of January, taken at this station for a period of sixteen years.

It is believed that the facts thus set forth will prove of interest to the public, as well as the special student, showing as they do the average and extreme conditions of the more important meteorological elements and the range within which such variations may be expected during any corresponding month.

Temperature.—Mean or normal temperature, 53 deg. The warmest January was that of 1883, with an average of 57 deg. The coldest January was that of 1890, with an average of 49 deg. The highest temperature during any January was 84 deg. on January 3, 1888. The lowest temperature during any January was 30 deg. on January 7, 1880, and January 20, 1883.

Precipitation (rain).—Average for the month, 2.97 inches. Average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, 6. The greatest monthly precipitation was 7.53 inches in 1890. The least monthly precipitation was .20 inches in 1887. The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any twenty-four consecutive hours was 4.17 inches on January 25 and 26, 1890.

Clouds and weather.—Average number of cloudless days, 17; average number of partly cloudy days, 8; average number of cloudy days, 6.

Wind.—The prevailing winds have been from the northeast. The highest velocity of the wind during any January was forty-eight miles on January 8, 1882.

Stock-taking Sale.

Tomorrow we commence our great Annual Stock-taking Sale. All surplus merchandise will be sold; it's not a question of how much it will bring, but how quick can we sell it. During the past year we have engineered some great transactions in merchandise, but nothing that we have heretofore achieved in merchandising will for an instant compare in point of colossal magnitude, with the great sale which we inaugurate with the opening of the store doors tomorrow. Every article that we have too much of, every article that is a slow seller, every broken line, every endment, every oddment, every remnant, will have a price put on it that will be far and away below anything for which a like quality of merchandise has ever changed hands on this coast. The presentation of this advertisement is not a mercantile caprice. A grand stock of over half a million of dollars in bright, marketable merchandise stands here to back the advertiser's claim.

Domestics.

An extremely heavy stock now on hand, which must be reduced before stock-taking. To that end we make prices which must be notable for their lowness.

7½c extra heavy grade Canton Flannel..... 5c
Outing Flannels, better than hundred styles, light, dark and medium colorings and Turkey red grounds; not a yard in the lot worth less than 10c, will be sold 12 yards for... $1

The Leading Specialists for Diseases of MEN Exclusively.

Not a Dollar Need be Paid FOR

Medicine or Treatment

Until We Cure You.

We mean the above statement emphatically—it means everybody, and it is to show our sincerity, honesty and ability to cure these diseases, of which we make a specialty. We have the largest practice in Southern California, acquired by skill and modern charges. Our Offices are the most elaborate and private in the city, and you need see no one but the doctors. We make it a part of our business to deal in sacred confidence with our patients. We have abandoned the treatment of all diseases except those of a Private, Nervous and Chronic Nature of Men. We believe that we thereby attain the highest possible degree of success for the speedy, thorough and permanent cure of these peculiar cases. Our book on the nature and treatment of these diseases, together with rules for diet, exercise and sleep sent free on application; also our self-diagnosis sheet and our opinion as to the curability of the case.
